GRADUATE PROGRAMS [1]

PHD IN ANTHROPOLOGY

The Department of Anthropology at the University of Washington is comprised of three principal anthropological sub-fields with which its faculty, programs, and curriculum are associated. Although graduate students may take courses in any subdiscipline (and any department in the university), applicants wishing to be considered for admission [2] to the Department of Anthropology choose only one of these three programs.

- Archaeology [3]
- Biological Anthropology [4]
- Sociocultural Anthropology [5]

SPECIALIZATION IN MEDICAL ANTHROPOLOGY AND GLOBAL HEALTH

The department also offers a specialization in medical anthropology and global health [6] which applicants can pursue within one of the traditional PhD track programs.

STATISTICS CONCENTRATION

Graduate student pursuing a PhD in anthropology may also consider completing a certificate program in conjunction with the degree including a Statistics Concentration in Anthropology [7].

OTHER CERTIFICATES

A partial list of certificate programs can be found on the [Graduate School website] [8].

CONCURRENT MPH/PHD PROGRAM

The concurrent degree program [9] offers an interdisciplinary curriculum in the fields of public health and anthropology leading to the Masters in Public Health (MPH) and Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) in Anthropology degrees. We have developed this degree program with the departments of Epidemiology, Global Health, and Health Services. Learn more about the concurrent MPH/PhD program [9].
