Sam Dubal was in a hurry to change the world. Determined to address inequities in medicine, he earned a medical degree and a PhD in medical anthropology by the time he was 31. He published his first book a year later, before joining the UW faculty as an assistant professor of anthropology last year. One month into his new position, Dubal — an avid hiker — disappeared on Mt. Rainier. His life and stellar career were cut short.