RE-LOCATE KIVALINA [1]

http://www.relocate-ak.org/

ReLocate is a group of ethnographic artists from around the world working with the Iñupiaq community of Kivalina, Alaska to initiate a new, community-led and culturally specific village relocation. ReLocate is building artistic and web-based platforms that intend to make the social, political, and environmental issues related to relocation visible to global audiences; support community discussion and consensus building; locate, connect and educate new relocation partners; create spaces where people in Kivalina can share original media and ideas about local identities and ways of life; and develop an infrastructure for managing global support and pursuing relocation planning opportunities.
